One day while they were resting, suddenly they found themselves on the surface, and they saw a shining sun which twinkled in their eyes. They went up, free and thoughtless, attracted by its beauty and heat. They realized that they had changed into water steam.

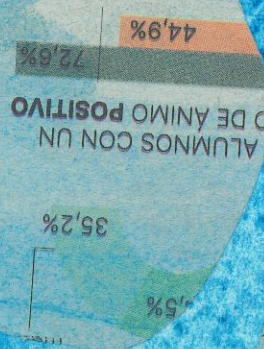

Once arrived up high, Droppy and her sisters looked around, curious and excited. At a certain point, they started to feel cold and a little frightened. While seeing her sisters so scared, Droppy thought of a way to reassure them.

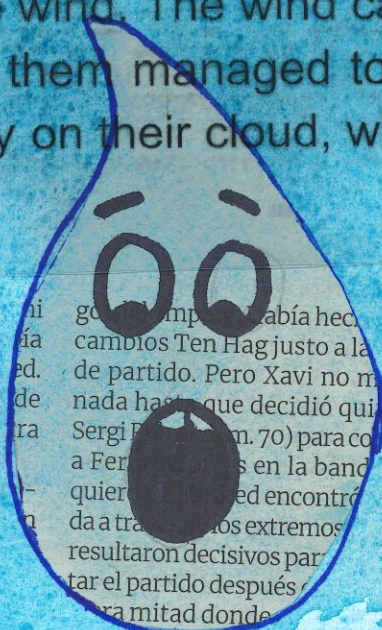

SUICIDIOS

The little drop had the idea to unite all together in a big warm hug. After a few moments, the little drops felt protected and safe. This way, without realizing, they had formed the clouds.

Some drops wanted to return to the sea, but Droppy and some of her sisters wanted to stay on their cloud. The drops that wanted to get to the sea called out for the wind. The wind came and pushed them off the cloud. Some of them managed to fall down, while others continued their journey on their cloud, which moved over a mountain.

Droppy and her friends began to feel frozen, and they fell down like snow.

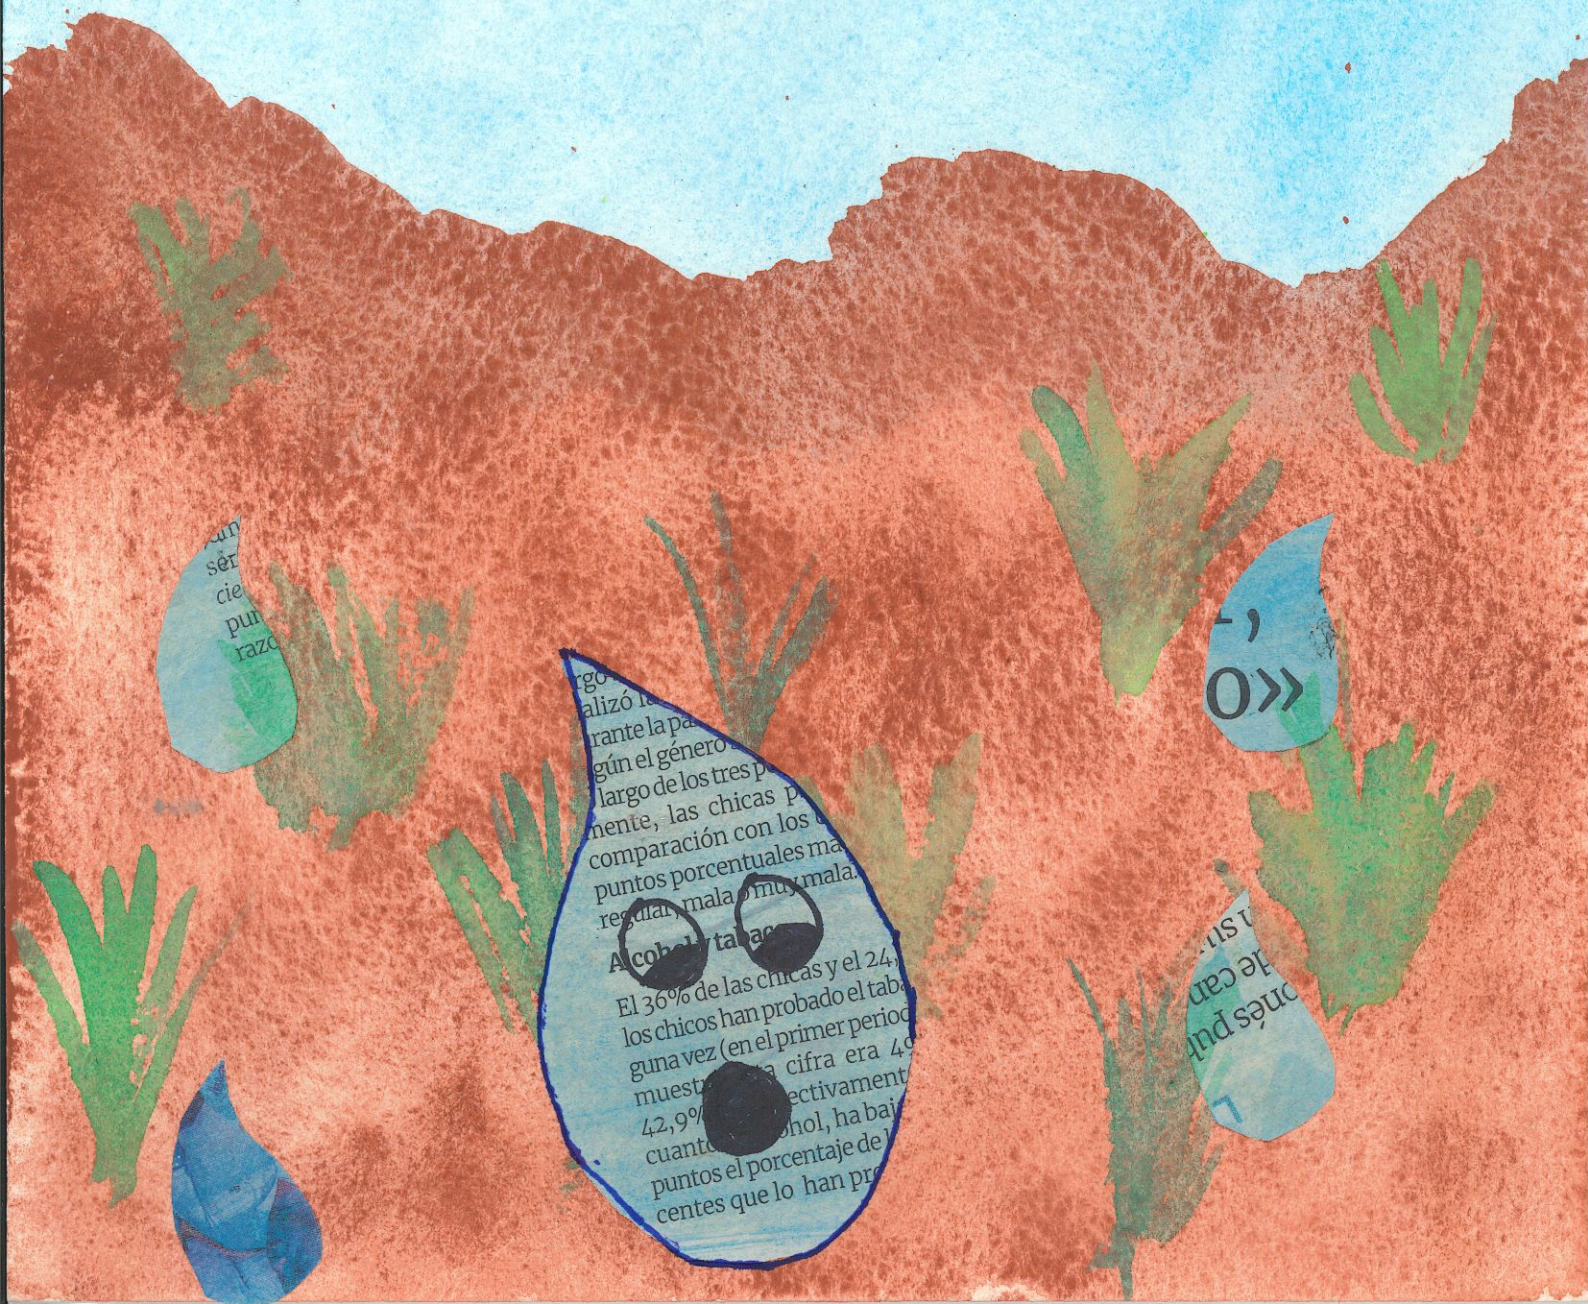

The snowflake Droppy landed on a rock. She saw other flakes like her, and she thought that they were her sisters, so they hugged and spent the winter close to each other not to feel too cold.

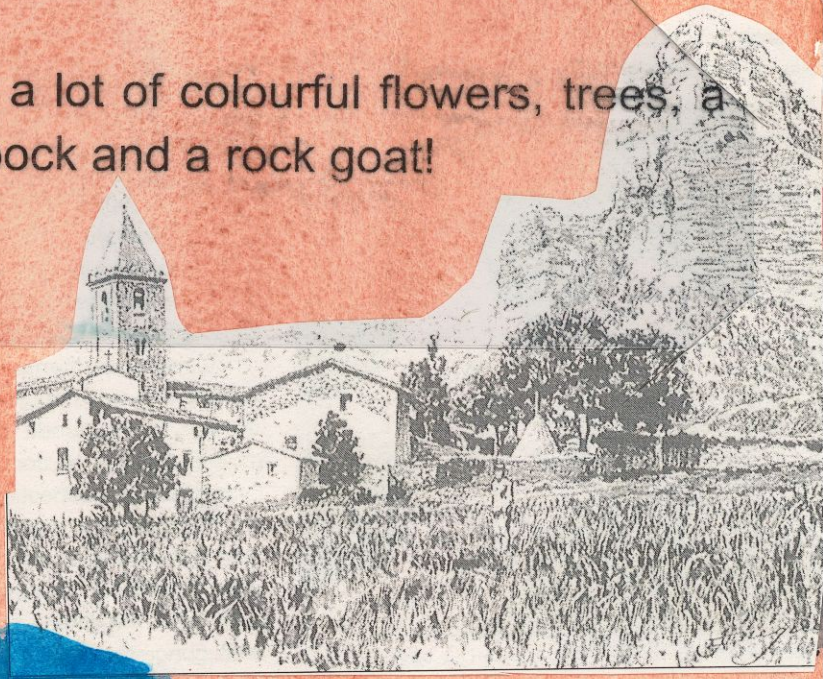

Spring arrived, the Sun began to shine and warmed them.

They slowly started to move down the mountain slope, while other droplets got trapped in the ground.

During the journey, they saw a lot of colourful flowers, trees, a little village, and even a steinbock and a rock goat!

At some point, they raised their heads up because there was an eagle above them, and they didn't notice that they were falling down.

They came to another river, where they met other drops like them. Droppy and her friends were scared because the stream was very fast.

Suddenly, they found themselves in the sea again... around them only a lot of tiny drops.

Finally, they felt at home and started to warm up under the sunlight.
